

Phoenics Electronics Named Exclusive U.S. Distributor for N2Power

December 13th, 2022

Phoenics Electronics (an Avnet company) is the new exclusive demand creation distributor for N2Power in North America. Phoenics Electronics will be extending all available capabilities for N2Powers broad line of power supplies.

"This exclusive U.S. partnership will give our customers in North America the best technical, logistics, and sales support throughout N2Powers entire portfolio," said Anthony Iacovino Vice President of Worldwide Sales at N2Power. As we continue to rollout new products such as our new XS series (extra small) 125-watt AC-DC Series, XL180 Watt, and our XL750-watt supplies with up to 94% high efficiency, a partner like Phoenics meets the exact criteria, we have been searching for in a distributor. Phoenics' focused sales force and technical support teams will help get our customers to market faster.

N2Powers leadership is committed to offering a broad range of power supplies with the highest efficiency to a diversified market including gaming, industrial, ITE and medical sectors with value added capabilities.

This collaboration between Phoenics Electronics sales and technical support teams along with N2Powers extensive product line will launch both of our companies to the next level.

"Phoenics Electronics is very excited to be partnered with N2 Power. N2 Power provides technologies and customized services that align well with our OEM customer base" said David Owens, President. "We're confident N2 Power's complete power assembly solutions will assist customers in achieving their technical design needs."
